

Kardinaal Alfrink Peace Fund 2016

Report of activities 2016

1. The 2016 Peace prize went to the Catholic Commission for Justice and Peace of Pakistan and the Human Rights Commission of Pakistan. These two organisations were chosen as representatives of the nonviolent struggle of the human rights community in Pakistan. The Human Rights Commission of Pakistan (HRCP) plays a lead role in providing a highly informed and objective voice in the struggle for the provision of human rights for all and democratic development in Pakistan. They monitor human rights violations and seek redress through public campaigns, lobbying and intervention in the courts, while also organizing seminars, workshops and fact-finding missions. The Catholic Commission for Justice and Peace (CCJP), formed by the Pakistan Catholic Bishops' Conference, provides services in the field of human rights with special focus on the issues of religious minorities in Pakistan. Through its 8 offices across the country, CCJP runs peace programs while also campaigning for an unbiased education system in order to counter religious intolerance in society.

The two organisations were honoured at a ceremony in Geneva at the World Council of Churches' Chapel on 17 November 2016

2. For the peace prize 2017 , it was recommended to look at candidates from North America (Mexico included). Possible themes can be nonviolence or security, disarmament and demilitarization
3. The KAVF will continue to support in 2017 and beyond Pax Christi International in establishing a more diverse funding base, a strong programme and a more visible public presence including the creation of tools for connecting, communicating and acting together as a movement. At the same time the diversified fundraising strategy includes major donors, international religious congregations, Catholic development agencies, UN and public funds and foundations.
4. The search for more female board members continues
5. Werner Caekelbergh was elected treasurer on 16/02/2016
